Shifting the Terrain for Diaspora Studies: Democracy, the Rule of Law, and the 'New' Souls of Black Folk

Kamari M. Clarke

Feb 7, 2008 | 6:00pm
Lecture
Ella Weed Room
Milbank Hall

This lecture is part of the Virginia C. Gildersleeve lecture series Race, Gender, Community & Rights: Celebrating 15 Years of Africana Studies at Barnard.

Professor Clarke is Associate Professor of Anthropology, Yale University. She has degrees in Political Science, Anthropology, and International law. Her research interests in religious and legal movements and the related production of knowledge and power have taken her to intentional Yoruba communities in the American South, traditionalist religious and legal domains in Southwestern Nigeria, international criminal tribunals, and international law training sessions in Ireland, London, Geneva, and Banjul and United Nations board rooms in New York City and The Hague. Her books include Mapping Yoruba Networks: Power and Agency in the Making of Transnational Communities and Globalization and Race: Transformations in the Cultural Production of Blackness.

DONATE

Your donation will allow BCRW to continue to grow and develop programming and innovative collaborations rooted in intersectional feminist praxis.

Donate

RECOMMENDED STORIES

Nov 1, 2023

FEMINIST FREEDOM SCHOOL

In 2023, Barnard ran its first Feminist Freedom School, a week-long summer workshop for students involved in social movements to engage with urgent themes in feminist politics. The inaugural theme was abolition. Stay tuned for the theme for 2024. BCRW is committed to vibrant and engaged research, pedagogy, art, and activism. We support the work […]

Read More

Oct 20, 2023

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE IN COLONIAL AND CONTEMPORARY PHILIPPINES

Presented by the Department of Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, Barnard College Issues of marriage and divorce remain contentious in the Philippines, but the history of marriage remains unexplored. When the Spanish established colonial rule and Catholicism in the 16th century, they also introduced new laws regulating marriage in the Philippines, and by the 19th […]

Read More